

AMERICAN ENGLISH

CONVERSATIONS WITH NATASHA NG, FULBRIGHT ETA

This year our university hosts a Fulbright teaching assistant, Natasha from Arizona. It is obvious that we cannot but take full advantage of her stay here, especially taking into account the process of internationalisation we are going through these days. Undoubtedly, there is a pressing necessity for the University staff as well as to all the students to develop greater English proficiency. To that end the Institute of Sociology put forward the initiative to have conversations with Natasha that would boost the communications skills in English for everyday situations and the use in the academic environment.

Thus, we invite the faculty staff of the University of Opole to the American English conversations that will be held every Thursday at 11 a.m. starting from October, 27.

We have to plan for the venue of those encounters that is why we would kindly ask all those who want to join to let us know via email:

hello@uni.opole.pl

In the email, please, give your full name, the department and the planned mode of participation (on a regular or from time to time basis)

Application deadline is 11 a.m., Wednesday, October 26.

We are open to any topics for discussion, your initiative and engagement would be highly appreciated.

The invitations with a particular venue of the meetings will be sent out on Wednesday evening,

HELLO!!
